MANY MASSACRED

Massacre in Macedonia is Confirmed by Dispatches.

New Minister From Colombia, Concha Was Relieved Today—Congress Opened Today.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE

London, Dec. 1.—Private telegrams received in Geneva at the headquarters of the International Red Cross confirm the report of the massacre in Macedonia. Most of the leaders in the recent insurrection have been killed under various pretexts. The Turkish troops have formed cordons around villages, cutting off communication. It is feared a majority of the villagers have perished.

NEW COLOMBIAN MINISTER.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Senator Concha has been relieved as minister from Colombia by orders from Bogota, and it is believed that Dr. Thomas Herran, present secretary of the legation here, will be accredited as minister to succeed Senator Concha in course of a few days. Meanwhile Dr. Herran has been clothed by his government with full authority to prosecute the negotiations looking to the canal treaty, with considerably enlarged powers.

TURNED DOWN AGAIN.

Louisville, Dec. 1.—The Home Tobacco Warehouse Co., the new independent house, was again refused admission into the Louisville Leaf Tobacco exchange today. This is final, the Home company not having the right to make another application. The Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co. voted solidly against admitting the new warehouse to membership.

CONGRESS OPENS.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The second session of the Fifty-seventh congress convened at noon today. The hall of representatives presented a brilliant scene for the opening of the session. During recess the chamber had been decorated throughout. The old color scheme of gold and crimson will be preserved, but fresh colors served to lighten the general effect.

EMPLOYEES ON HIS DIVISION PRESENT HIM WITH A FINE GUN.

Mr. W. J. Hills, superintendent of the Memphis division of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, was yesterday afternoon presented with a fine $125 shot gun by Agent Owen, of Memphis, who acted as a committee from all the employees of the division.

The gift was made by the employees to show their love and appreciation for their superintendent and the token is highly prized by Mr. Hills. The gun is an excellent one and as Mr. Hills is a hunter, is all the more appreciated. The presentation speech was made by Mr. Owen and a short response was made by Mr. Hills, who had been caught at the depot about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and the gift came as a surprise.

MANY BOOTLEGGERS

Bottles Found by the Hundred This Morning by Police.

Chief Collins Says That It Gets Worse Every Sunday in Paducah.

MAKES SOME SUGGESTIONS

The amount of bootlegging in Paducah yesterday was larger than any Sunday since the saloons began closing. It appears it grows every week, and Chief Collins said today that he never heard of so much of it as there was yesterday.

"Down near the city scales and in the alleys near there, there are hundreds of bottles," he said today. There are assorted sizes and more than you can count."

"I have come to the conclusion, from a good many years service in the police department," continued the chief, "that you can't stop whiskey selling no matter what you do. My idea is to let it be sold all the time, and regulate the saloons. Make them take down all the screens, and this will enable officers to have complete control of them. If a man wants a drink, he goes in after it and doesn't go any oftener than he has to and doesn't stay any longer than he can help. There would then be no back rooms or private apartments where men and women could go in and get drunk and fight. This, in my opinion, is the only way to reduce or regulate the liquor traffic."

It is likely that a number of warrants will be issued as a result of yesterday's traffic. The sellers of the liquor however, were unusually shrewd, and for that reason could not be caught.

AMBITIOUS COONS

THEY WANTED TO GET RICH AND STOLE A CARLOAD OF COAL.

Two Graves county negroes seem to have gone into the coal stealing business on a wholesale plan. The scarcity of coal apparently prompted them to form a trust, for they were arrested Saturday by Chief McNatt of Mayfield for stealing a carload of coal at Wingo belonging to the Illinois Central. Their names are Sol Thompson and Jim Overby. They were held over and sent to jail.

FOR A BREACH OF THE PEACE.

Tobe Davis and Felix Nunley, colored, were arrested this afternoon on a breach of the peace warrant. They started a quarrel near Second and Court streets over a dollar and used insulting and profane language. They were locked up to await the action of Special Police Judge Dave A. Cross tomorrow morning.

Powell Scott, white, was arrested this afternoon on a warrant charging him with vagrancy. He is the man who was arrested several days ago on the charge of bootlegging. He has been loafing about the streets and is said to have become a public nuisance.

THE BEST EVER.

The company which will present "A Wise Woman," the latest musical farce, at the Kentucky in the near future, has a really wonderful array of well known people enlisted in the ranks of the organization. The management do not believe in the too common system of "one or two giving the whole show," but have organized what is undoubtedly one of the strongest farce-comedy casts ever brought together.

THE NEXT DEBATE.

The Debating club will debate on an interesting subject Thursday night and one that will attract some little attention. That subject is: "Has Andrew Carnegie used his surplus fund to the best advantage?" Mr. Jack Bloomfield will lead the affirmative side and Messrs. William Watson and G. W. Oliver will take the negative side.

SUPERVISOR RESIGNS.

HE IS SUCCEEDED BY J. W. SHAW OF LOUISVILLE.

Mr. Martin Orahon, one of the oldest supervisors in service of the I. O., resigned Saturday and was succeeded by Mr. J. W. Shaw, general foreman in the Louisville yards.

Mr. Orahon has been with the I. O. for more than fifteen years and has been supervisor of the Louisville division for more than ten years. He is a man of much experience and a thorough railroad man. He has not made known his intentions yet, but will probably go with an Eastern road. His successor is not well known here, but has been employed in the railroad service for many years. He has been in the Louisville yards acting as general foreman and will make a good supervisor. Mr. Orahon's many friends here will regret to learn of his resignation.

THE COUNCIL.

AN INTERESTING SESSION TO BE HELD THIS EVENING.

The council meets tonight, and the session will be of unusual interest, as the ordinances fixing the number of police officers and their salaries, the salaries of various officers now being paid fees, and placing in the hands of the chief of police the duties now performed by the city marshal will come up for consideration. There will be another attempt to secure a transfer of the Womble saloon license from Sixth and Jackson to Thirteenth and Clay streets. A protest was filed the first time the transfer was asked for and a greater one will be filed tonight by Councilman Potter if the transfer is asked for again.

SOON OVERHAULED.

MAYFIELD PRISONER ATTEMPTED TO OUTFRAN THE OFFICER.

There was an exciting time in Mayfield this morning, when Robert Rogers, white, escaped from Deputy Jailer Robert James and tried to outrun both James and his pistol.

The fugitive had just been sentenced to three years in prison for stealing a mule several days ago, and when the deputy jailer was taking him from the court house to the jail he broke away and began to run. The officer pulled his gun and shot four times, each shot failing to strike the mark. A horse was secured and he soon had Rogers in custody again.

DATE OF CHARITY BALL CHANGED.

The charity ball announced for Friday evening of this week will be on Thursday instead. The change is made on account of the Friday night service at Temple Israel, many of this congregation being most valued workers in the good cause. The tickets for the ball can be secured at L. B. Ogilvie's and McPherson's. This ball will be the event of the week and will be liberally patronized.

IS CRAZY.

A MAN SAYS HIS VOICE HAS BEEN SOLD.

Felix Ourry, a farmer residing several miles out on the N. O. and St. L. road, appeared at the county jail Saturday evening and said that he wanted something done to "Wood Irving" and "the Dutchman," who had sold his voice and had not paid him for it. "They also use my name for a hog and I don't get anything out of it," he declared. Ourry appeared at the city hall several weeks ago and said that "Disfaced Rook," the "Dutchman" and the "Man in the Sky" had been bothering him a great deal and he wanted something done about it. He has been to the asylum once, it is said, and has these spells occasionally. Jailer Jones took him before Judge Lightfoot, who talked with him and ordered him back to jail to await the action of the circuit court.

BOTH ROBBED.

PADUOAHAN A VICTIM OF HIGHWAYMEN NEAR THEBES, ILL.

Mr. H. A. Rose, a well known bridge builder of the Illinois Central, who lives on North Twelfth street, was held up and robbed near Thebes, Ill., last Thursday. He arrived in the city yesterday, having been deprived of every cent of his last month's wages.

Mr. Rose and a man from Joppa had started from one town to another to send money home to their families, there being no postoffice at the first place, and were walking along the railroad. Suddenly three men stopped them and went through them, securing $57 from Mr. Rose and nearly as much from the Joppa man, whose name could not be learned. Over $100 was taken from both men.

DIED IN NASHVILLE.

MISS JESSIE WHITE DIES SUDDELY—60 YEARS OLD.

Mrs. William McMahon, of South Fourth street, this morning received a telegram calling her to Nashville where her sister, Miss Jessie White, age 60 years, suddenly died last night. The telegram gave no particulars except that death was very sudden. The deceased lived here the greater part of her life, but had been living with her brother, Mr. Sam White, a steamboat engineer, in Nashville for the past twelve years. She leaves here a sister, Mrs. McMahon and a nephew, Mr. James Weston, the well known engineer of the brewery. Mrs. McMahon left this afternoon for Nashville to attend the funeral.

CHOKED BY BRISTLE.

Reuben, the little son of Attorney Hagby, got a bristle caught in his throat last night, and it required over two hours to extricate the obstacle. The little fellow cannot account for its presence and cannot remember how he got it in his throat.

THE CRIMINAL TERM

Judge Husbands Opened Circuit Court Today.

Mr. R. G. Terrell is Foreman of the Grand Jury—Seay Arson Case the First.

PETIT JURY TOMORROW

The regular December term of McOracken county circuit court convened here this morning, Judge L. D. Husbands presiding.

There are 162 cases on the docket and many are important ones. The first case on the docket for trial is that against Edgar Seay, who is charged with arson, the burning of his house several weeks ago. Seay has secured Attorneys Cross and Houser to defend him and will enter a plea that the burning was accidental—that he had kindled a fire in the kitchen stove with coal oil and that it had accidentally set the house on fire.

The Ellis Headley bribery case is also set for the morrow. Headley was here last term, but no action was taken in his case. It was set for the first part of the term so that a hearing might be had.

These are the most important cases that will come up this week and there will probably be a large attendance in the court room to hear the evidence. Two cases are docketed against George A. Allen, the young man who was indicted for forgery and irregularities in managing an insurance business here. Allen has never been caught and the cases will probably be continued.

The petit jury will not be empaneled before tomorrow morning and this morning business was principally routine work. The following actions were taken this morning:

In the cases of Annie Nichols and L. E. Stevenson, Adm., against the I. O. railroad, suits for $25,000 and $40,000 for injuries and death at the Dawson accident, the defendants filed petitions and offered bond to have cases removed to the U. S. court.

In the cases of W. F. Paxton and James A. Roy against James N. White of Nashville, suits for $10,000 damages each, for slander, petitions and bonds were filed to have cases removed to the U. S. court.

THE BOYS' WORK.

STATE CHAIRMAN COX WAS IN THE CITY YESTERDAY.

Mr. George H. Cox, state chairman of the boys' work committee of the Y. M. C. A., was in the city yesterday and held a conference with the local chairman of the boys' committee and with the secretary of the local association. A conference is being arranged and it is the intention of the management to advocate the matter and see if enough interest cannot be aroused in the boys here to send a delegation from Paducah. The place for holding the conference has not yet been selected, but if it is held at all it will be during this month.

WAS GIVEN ONE YEAR.

Henry Alock, white, who was tried Saturday in the Mayfield circuit court for attempting to burn the mill of Jack Pigg, was yesterday morning sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. The case was tried Saturday, but the verdict was not reached before Sunday morning.

STAMP DEPUTY'S REPORT.

Mr. Louis Rebout, the stamp deputy, has finished his report for the past month and has collected a total of $4,908.68 and issued stamps for 1,100 barrels of whiskey.

THE SCHOOL BOARD

Meeting Takes Place Tomorrow Night at Washington School.

A Savings Bank Plan to Be Recommended for the Action of the Trustees.

TWO TRUSTEES TO RESIGN

The school board will meet tomorrow night in regular session and two very important questions will come up for consideration.

At the last meeting a move was made to have a teachers' supervisor appointed to look after the schools. This is done in all large cities and has proven a success. It adds much to the interest in the work and aids the teachers in keeping their work together. The question was raised at last meeting but had to lay over until this meeting, as is required by rule.

It is to be suggested that the board allow the teachers in the public schools to start a pupils' savings bank. This is a feature of school work that is proving a success all over the country. In France and Belgium such a custom has been in force for years and the success attained in those countries has prompted the adoption in the United States. In the Long Island schools there has been saved by pupils $119,880 since 1885 and in Denver, Col., since October 1900, there has been $1,360 deposited. Each pupil brings what money he wants to put in the bank every Monday morning and when a certain sum is reached it is placed in the big bank, selected by the school's vote and the pupils are given a bank book. This money can be drawn out at any time and if kept in a certain length of time will pay interest to the depositor. The board will be asked tomorrow night to give authority to such a move.

It is probable that Trustees Nichols and Bener will resign as they have moved, or are to move, from their wards. Their probable successors have not yet been mentioned, and no applicants or probable candidates are named.

WANTED MAD STONE

Man From Graves County Arrived Today.

A Young Hound Bit Several Persons, He Among Them

W. W. Waggoner, a farmer living near Mayfield, Ky., arrived in the city this morning and applied to Mr. Frank Manta, of the Fowler, Orumbaugh bookstore, for his celebrated madstone.

Waggoner was bitten by a hound yesterday on the right hand and as the wound is getting worse thought it best to have the madstone applied to see if the dog was rabid. Saturday his little three year old son, Roy, was bitten by the animal on the nose and also was Miss Laura Orider, a young lady living close to the Waggoner farm. The animal is a hound and about one year old. It had never acted this way before and the owner, Mr. Waggoner, thinks it was rabid when it attacked him. If the stone sticks to the wound then he will feel satisfied that the animal was mad and will bring the other persons who were bitten to the city to have the madstone applied.

Work Caused Nervous Prostration,
Heart Trouble and Great Suffering.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine Cured Me.

Where the symptoms of heart disease and weakness are present together with those of nervous trouble, much benefit may be derived from the use of both Nervine and Heart Cure. The Nervine quiets the weary brain and brings sweet sleep, it brings the needed nourishment to the nervous system, restores nerve-force, vitality and energy. The action of the Heart Cure is equally beneficial. It aids the good work of Nervine by enriching the blood, improving the circulation and by its tonic action steadying and restoring the heart beats or pulse to their normal activity.

"Some years ago while I was connected with the Western Nebraska Conference as Presiding Elder, I was so overworked that I became greatly run down in health and suffered for two years with serious nervous prostration and heart trouble. At first I had spells of heart palpitation and smothering, and later there was a great deal of pain in the region of the heart and a feeling of oppression in the chest. During all this time I was very nervous, irritable and unable to sleep. Being advised to try Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure and Pain Pills, they proved exceedingly beneficial to me, affording complete and permanent cure. Since then your remedies have frequently been used by myself and family and always with the best results."—Rev. C. H. POLHMER, U. B. Church, Washington, D. C.

Not Necessary.

A golfer who was loafing around a clubhouse on the off chance of getting a game espied a man who seemed to be in a similar plight. He sought out his caddy and took him into a corner. "How does he play?" he asked the lad. "Not worth a bang," was the prompt reply. "Then I'll have to give him something if I play him." "You'll not need to do anything of the kind," replied the caddy.

MUCH ABUSED MAN

Judge Toney Feels a Commiseration for Him, It Appears.

Says He Stands No Chance at All if
His Wife Wants to Make Him Miserable

A RECENT OPINION

Judge Toney, of Louisville, has rendered an opinion in the suit of the Central asylum of Kentucky against F. B. Beeler for $1,000 for five years care of his wife, who is in the asylum. The opinion holds that the husband is liable, and his opinion contains a great deal of dignified humor. It is:

"The marital relations at common law between husband and wife, quo ad their property rights, have been abolished in Kentucky by statute. The doctrine of unity of person of the two is abolished. The doctrine of merger is reversed and the gray mare is the better horse. In every legal contest between husband and wife he is the under dog in the fight. If she have estate and he none, he is a pensioner on her bounty, and it is only ex gratia he may enter the back door of her mansion.

"I know a matron-heiress, sailing in her yacht in the Mediterranean sea, while her husband is in the poor house. He is not entitled to her personal property nor to her rents, nor to her earnings, nor to anything that is here, and is not even allowed to give her a mild Blackstonian obsequism to keep her in a good humor. The common law baron is dethroned and the feme enthroned in every legal right and advantage over him. Dower and curtesy are abolished in Kentucky. Notwithstanding the total disruption of marital status of property rights of husband and wife at common law, the husband, the poor fellow, is still liable for her torts, her gossip and her spring and fall hats, and, a fortiori, for her necessities, whether furnished by the state, if she is insane, or by some other man, if she is not in the asylum."

PROMOTED AGAIN.

MR. RICHARD GEAGEN BECOMES
CHIEF CLERK TO AGENT STOVALL AT LOUISVILLE.

Mr. Richard Geagen, Jr., who was with the Illinois Central here two years ago, has received another promotion, today becoming chief clerk of the freight department of the road in Louisville, similar to the position here of Mr. A. R. Meyers. It is his third promotion in little over a year, and his fifth promotion in three years.

He has been cashier of the Louisville office, but his new position places him next in importance and authority to Mr. E. F. Stovall, the agent. His many friends here will be pleased to hear of his further advancement. He is oldest son of Mr. Richard Geagen, of South Seventh street. [E]

COURT AT SMITHLAND.

A SMALL DOCKET ON HAND
FOR DISPOSAL THIS TIME.

The regular term of circuit court began at Smithland today, with a large docket and it will be Judge Nunn's last term as circuit judge there. In a month he goes to Frankfort as judge of the court of appeals.

About the only case of interest to Paducahans is that against Ernest Elmendorf, who is charged with safe blowing and being implicated in an effort to assist safe blowers in jail there to escape. He has been in jail there for several months.

A DANGEROUS MONTH.

This is the month of coughs, colds and acute catarrh. Do you catch cold easily? Find yourself hoarse, with a tickling in your throat and an annoying cough at night? Then you should always have handy a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup. J. A. Anderson, 354 West Fifth St., Salt Lake City, writes: "We use Ballard's Horehound Syrup for coughs and colds. It gives immediate relief. We know it's the best remedy for these troubles. I write this to induce other people to try this pleasant and efficient remedy." 25c, 50c and $1 at DuBois, Kolb and Co.

Observations

....at Random

The Inka correspondent of the Smithland Banner alludes to a minister who has been holding a meeting as "a hen in the battle," or else the printer has gotten in his work in a most amusing manner. The notice reads: "A great revival meeting is in progress here. Rev. Lucy is conducting it. He has proven himself to be a hen in this battle. Through his unwearied interest and earnest work. Several have been led from the dark valleys of sin to the bright pathway of righteousness."

The Smithland Courier tells of how the Boh Dndley a few days ago consumed twelve hours in going from Paducah to Smithland, a distance of twelve miles. It says that she left Paducah at 11 in the morning and tied up at the island until 8:30 on account of a leak in her mud drum and boilers. She arrived at Smithland at 11 o'clock at night. The passengers and crew passed the time pleasantly, a monkey, two dagoes and piano and a phonograph being the means afforded the passengers for their amusement.

"Talking about bootlegging and local option" remarked a drummer yesterday, "you ought to go to Kansas, where they have plenty of both. Soon after I had reached one of the cities of considerable size and importance, a man of good address accosted me, and asked me if I ever drank. I told him I did occasionally, but that I didn't know where to go, or I'd ask him to join me. That seemed to be the chance he was looking for. He then winked and offered to sell me some fine cigars for ten cents each. I bought some just through curiosity, and found that they were small glass cases filled with whiskey, and covered with cigar wrappers. Before I had been there long, I found that you could buy whiskey in walking canes, apples, oranges and even eggs. They sold eggs in some places at a dollar a dozen. I thought that was pretty steep until I learned that eggs had been blown and filled with whiskey, the holes being neatly plugged with plaster of paris."

It is claimed by many unfortunate who have lost legs in the war and in railroad disasters, that they can sometimes feel their lost limbs and that if the limb was not buried straight they could feel it pinning them.

Some time ago a well known physician played a joke on a one-legged man. The man claimed that it had not been buried straight because he could feel it pinning him. The fact of the matter was that the leg had been cremated and the ashes were in a jar in the doctor's office at that time. The physician knew it would never do to inform the man of this so he told his porter to go out and straighten the log which the patient thought was done. The next morning when he called at the doctor's office the physician smilingly inquired if he was at peace. "Your leg has been straightened," the doctor said, "and I hope you are at rest."

"Well doctor," was the reply, "I knew that you straightened it because I felt it stop hurting when the grave was opened." Had the man known the true facts of the case he probably would have been suffering from his vivid imagination yet.

Many people remember Carl Von Scholer, the jeweler and miniature wood carver, who was in Paducah several years ago, and finally wound up his career here by attempting suicide. His work used to be on display in the show windows here and attracted much attention. He had not been heard from in several years in Paducah until a day or two ago, when Mr. Bornemann received from him several fine specimens of miniature work. There is a small Roman chariot of pure gold, which is hardly visible to the naked eye on the end of a pin, and is kept in a small bottle, the pin being run through the cork. There is a small group of deer, under a tiny glass case, carved from wood, and the clusters of flowers around the perfect little animals are so perfect that each blossom can be distinguished. The whole thing, case and all, is not half an inch in diameter. It recently took the premium at the Florida state fair.

Von Scholer is now living at Gimson, Florida, and is doing well.

Belle park theater here two or three seasons, will be pleased to learn that he has achieved more success than is the good fortune of most actors. Mr. Phillips' picture appears on the front page of last week's New York Dramatic Mirror, and the following notice shows what he has accomplished since he left Paducah several years ago with his wife, Agnes Carlston.

"Al Phillips, pictured on the first page, ran away from college and became a professional actor at 18 years of age. He had been an amateur and spent most of his boyhood days around the theater. During his few years as a professional he has played at least a hundred parts, giving a varied experience in all the different lines of work. His last season was divided as leading man for the Proctor Stock, New York, and the Empire Stock, Toledo. This season he is playing the minister in The Bonnie Brier Bush, with J. H. Stoddard, and the newspapers are unanimously kind to him. No one can be more conscientious in his work than is Mr. Phillips, who always gives the public his best efforts, whether in a one-night stand or a large city. He hopes to advance as much in the next few years as he has in the past, for he started at the very bottom of the ladder and has climbed steadily upward."

BEST LINIMENT ON EARTH.

L. M. Mollany, Greenville, Tex., writes, Nov. 3, 1900: "I had rheumatism last winter, was down in bed six weeks; tried everything, but got no relief till a friend gave me a part of a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. I used it, and got two more bottles. It cured me and I haven't felt any rheumatism since. I can recommend Snow Liniment to be the best liniment on earth for rheumatism." For rheumatic, sciatic or neuralgic pains rub in Ballard's Snow Liniment; you will not suffer long, but will be gratified with a speedy and effective cure. 25c, 50c and $1 at DuBois, Kolb and Co.

Warns Ambitious Youth.

Mayor McNamee of Cambridge, Mass., told the scholars at Webster grammar school the other day that he hoped none of the boys would ever become a mayor and none of the girls the wife of a mayor. He said he could wish them no greater injury than that any of the boys should become a Democratic mayor of a Republican city.

WORM DESTROYER.

White's Cream Vermifuge not only kills worms, but removes the union, and slime in which they build their nests; it brings, and quickly, a healthy condition of the body, where worms cannot exist. 25c at DuBois, Kolb and Co.

GOSPEL BOAT

Strange Craft Comes in on its Way up the Tennessee.

There Are Nearly One Hundred in This Little Floating Community

The gospel boat "Megiddo" arrived late Saturday from the Mississippi river en route to Tennessee river to do evangelistic work. It is one of the strangest looking crafts seen here in many a day and is making its first cruise in these waters.

Rev. L. T. Nichols is in charge of the boat, which has a large windmill on top to pump water for running the boat. The craft seems to have been designed with a view to utility rather than to beauty, and is complete in its appointments. There are 85 on board, 17 of whom are children. Rev. James W. Little is pilot.

The little community spends most of its time in summer at St. Paul, and while there the members work in the factories. It usually spends the winters in the south.

The boat has an altar, library, piano and everything necessary for religious services, and is said to accomplish a great deal of good. It is a sort of "Salvation Navy," and remains at a place as long as it deems it advisable. It is said that there has never been a disagreement among the members of the gospel party since the boat started out over a year ago.

The boat is now at the mouth of Island creek, and its stay here is indefinite.

HER FIRST EFFORT.

"Enreka!" shouted the young railroad man as he rushed into his little home and greeted his bride with a joyful kiss.

"What is it?" she asked. "Have they raised your wages?"

"Not yet," he exclaimed, "but it is something better than that. I'll be above a mere salary in another year. I'll be a stockholder, and all I'll have to do will be to clip coupons by the hour."

"Did you save the president's life or avert a wreck?"

"No, nothing so commonplace. You know that little pumpkin pie you baked and placed in my Innock bucket?"

"Yes," she answered.

"Well, the vice president saw it today when I was eating lunch, and he came over where I was sitting and took it in his hand—"

"And ate it, and cried because it reminded him of when he was a boy, and asked you to join the board of directors?"

"No. He tested it with a sledgehammer and said it was just the material they wanted to make the car wheels of, and so I came home to get the recipe."—Judge.

BEAUTIFUL CLEAR SKIES.

POLICY FOUND

Old Papers Discovered in a Trunk Make a Widow Happy.

The Police Receive Several Inquiries of Persons for Missing Friends.

Mr. Lloyd Hart, of Tyler, Ky., recently bought a trunk that formerly belonged to John Garrison, a well known painter who died several months ago in the patrol wagon while being taken from the St. Nicholas hotel to the city hospital. He found in it a policy in the Knights and Ladies of Honor in favor of Mrs. Garrison, together with the receipts, which were Saturday night turned over to the police at the city hall. Mrs. Garrison had searched for the policy to collect the insurance but had been unable to find it, and it will now be turned over to her.

The police have been asked to find for Mr. B. Kross, of the Eden's Hill section, Gottlieb Goltz, a German who was injured in the county by a horse several days ago and walked all the way to the city from Maxon's Mills in the cold. He was sent to the city hospital to have his wound dressed, and his whereabouts were unknown to the officers.

Mrs. Mollie Miller, of Macon, Ga., writes to locate Mrs. Addie Johnson, wife of F. M. Johnson.

A letter signed Brother Mancholt, Memphis, asks that the police find Mrs. G. L. Smith, supposed to be here. She was at one time in Camen, Ark., and subsequently at St. Louis.

Lieutenant Moore Saturday night and yesterday found Mrs. Johnson at 524 South Third street and Mrs. Smith at Greenville, Miss. Mrs. Garrison has not yet been located.

Two horses reported stolen Saturday night were also found by the officers, one was Charles Howard, of the Massac section, whose horse strayed from the city scales lot and was found by officers. The other was Linn Pryor, colored, of Mechanicsburg, whose horse returned home.

DEATH OF MRS. ENGLERT.

WAS A VICTIM OF CONSUMPTION—FUNERAL THIS MORNING.

Mrs. Barbara Englert, aged 59, died yesterday at her home, 906 Jones street from consumption, after a long illness. She was born in this state, and had resided in Paducah for the past twelve years. She leaves five children, two sons, Messrs. Tom and George Englert, the former an engineer on the N. C. and St. L., and Mrs. Clara Blackburn and Misses Celia and Emma Englert.

The funeral took place this morning at 9:30 o'clock from the St. Francis De Sales church, burial at Mt. Carmel.

A VICTIM OF FOOTPADS.

Winston Robertson, aged 17, claims that when passing along near Seventh and Trimble streets and the railroad yards Saturday night early he was struck in the back of the head and rendered unconscious, and $2.50 taken from his pocket. He was found by Frank Yeltima a short time afterwards and taken to the hospital, where he is being revived.

THE SAVANNAH IS OFF

Handsome New Steamer Arrived from Cottonwood Bar Yesterday.

The Shiloh Is Expected From Louisville Today—New Pilots to Cairo.

OTHER LATE RIVER NEWS

The handsome new steamer City of Savannah, which had been aground at Cottonwood bar, six miles above the city since August 1, floated yesterday afternoon, was pulled off by the Dick Clyde and towed to the city about 3 o'clock p. m.

She was found to be straight as an arrow and does not leak a drop, consequently her long vigil in the corn field above here has not injured her in the least. She will probably be taken to St. Louis to be furnished, but arrangements to leave will probably not be made until Hapt. James Koger arrives on the Shiloh.

It is understood that Captain Sterling McIntyre will be captain on her. Yesterday's St. Louis papers stated that Captain McIntyre was dead, but this is probably an error, as his son died recently and the report probably grew out of that.

The Savannah was built at Jeffersonville for the St. Louis and Tennessee River Packet company, and will run in the St. Louis and Tennessee river trade.

The new steamer Shiloh, the St. Louis and Tennessee River Packet company's latest new boat, left Louisville yesterday for this place, and will arrive some time today, in charge of Supt. Koger, and Major J. H. Ashcraft, who will be in command of her on her down trip.

Yesterday's Courier-Journal said of her:

"Captain Ed Howard has built more than a dozen fine boats for the St. Louis and Tennessee River Packet company, but he has just completed as good and perfect a steamboat for the company as he ever built. She is named Shiloh, and was built to ply as a mail carrier and passenger packet between Danville and Savannah on the Tennessee river. Supt. Captain James Koger superintended her construction and in the main designed her. The hull is gracefully modeled and is well built. The cabin is of full length and beautiful design and the rooms are large and handsomely furnished. The mechanical department is of the best and the boilers A1. The electric light plant is complete and nothing is lacking to make her a model of 'speed, comfort and safety.' In addition to her graceful appearance and her complete outfit she is fast. Captain Ashcraft will leave with her today for Paducah and Tennessee river."

The shipment of coal from Pittsburgh to the south was delayed by a serious accident which occurred to a fleet of coal owned by the Dillworth Coal Co. The strong current in the Monongahela river tore the fleet loose from its fastenings at the Thirteenth street landing of the company on the South Side, and seven barges of the twelve which broke loose were sunk in the harbor. One of the sunken barges is in the river just abreast of the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati Packet line wharfboat, two are sunk in the river near the foot of Liberty street and the others are sunk above the Smithfield street bridge. Efforts will be made to raise the barges just as soon as possible.

The following towboats left Pittsburgh Friday: Tom Dodsworth, which took 16 barges; L. N. Bunton, 5 barges; W. W. O'Neil, 18 barges; Jim Brown, 6 barges; Fattie, 12 barges; Frank Gilmore, 3 barges and 3 boats; H. P. Dillworth, 3 barges; J. C. Risher, 10 barges; Bertha, 6 barges; Clipper, 7 barges; Charley Clark, 7 barges; total, 242 barges, 38 coalboats, containing about 4,135,000 bushels.

The Evansville Courier says: "Capt. Milton Purdie of this city is 84 years old, and is probably the oldest man living who saw active service in the steamboat world back of 1850. Capt. Purdie was a mate on the steamer Diana in the Louisville and Evansville trade, under Capt. Ayres, in 1846. He is still in good health and bids fair to live many years to come."

The Boh Dudley went out this morning in the Cairo trade, and the Joe Fowler left in her old trade, the Paducah and Evansville. The Dick Fowler is expected to leave today for the same trade.

A Secret Disease

Of all human diseases, that known as contagious blood poison, or the Bad Disease, has caused more misery and suffering and ruined more lives than all others combined. It not only wrecks the hopes and aspirations of the one who contracts it, but often the innocent are made to share the humiliation and disgrace of this most loathsome and hateful form of blood poison. Children inherit it from parents, and thousands of the purest men and women have been contaminated and ruined simply through handling the clothing of one infected with this awful malady, or drinking from the same vessel and using the same toilet articles.

THE INNOCENT SUFFER WITH THE GUILTY.

And when the real nature of the trouble is known, many prefer to suffer in silence or leave the disease to do its worst rather than make known their condition. Through our Medical Department we offer advice and help. Write us freely about your case, as nothing you say will ever go beyond our office. Let us help you to get rid of this fearful disease, for which some one else no doubt is to blame. It matters not how long the poison has been lurking in your system, S. S. S. will purify and build up your blood, and eliminate every atom of the deadly virus from the system and make a complete and permanent cure.

S. S. S. is the only antidote for Contagious Blood Poison and has been curing it for fifty years. It contains no mercury, potash or other harmful mineral ingredients, but is a purely vegetable remedy that cures without leaving any bad after effects.

Our special Home Treatment book, gives all the symptoms of this disease. We will mail you a copy free.

The Vincennes arrived from the lower Mississippi river today after having towed a sawmill outfit below Memphis last week. She left this morning for Uniontown, her headquarters.

CHRISTMAS TREE

FOR THE POOR.

As announced last week, The Sun has joined forces with Rev. R. W. Ohlles of the Rescue Mission to give the poor people, and especially the poor children, of Paducah a Christmas tree. The tree will be erected in the Rescue Mission the day after Christmas, and all the poor people of the city will be welcome to come. It is the intention to raise funds enough to take care of everyone in the city for whom the prospects for a Christmas are slim—those people to whom Christmas means so little for the simple reason that they have never had one.

To do this The Sun intends that all its friends shall help. The old people, the young people and the little children will be given an opportunity to assist, and together we can give the poor people of this city a Christmas that they will ever remember.

If every reader of The Sun will donate something, it does not matter how small the sum, the work can be done easily. If you don't feel like giving money give some clothing, some toys, or anything that you think someone would be pleased to get on a Christmas day.

The Sun is read by an average, at the least, of 7,000 people every day. Now if each of these readers will give 25 cents we shall have a good fund for our work. Twenty-five cents is a small sum and anyone can spare that amount. Everyone should, as we said, and everyone shall be given an opportunity to help in this noble work. Towards that end the following coupon will be published in the Sun, and we ask all our readers to fill it out for some amount. We don't care what, just so you give something.

To The Sun

I inclose herewith

for the Christmas tree to be given the poor of the city the day following Christmas.

The Democratic claim that President Roosevelt in his recent letter made a "grand-stand play" for the negro vote of the south is ridiculous on its face. President Roosevelt does not need the negro vote of the south, nor any other vote of the south, to elect him. Every politician and every man who knows anything at all of the manner of choosing presidents of the United States knows that no southern state is necessary to the election of a Republican president, and that no southern state, with few exceptions, ever goes Republican, hence it would be foolish to make a play of any kind for states that are not needed. So far as the appointment of colored persons in the north is concerned, and the assertion that the president is afraid to appoint them there because the people would consider it offensive, it is a well known fact that in the north the people are much less likely to object to the appointment of colored persons who do as he thinks is right without asking anyone's permission or pardon. He has no apologies to offer to the Democrats, the Republicans, the southern people, the Yankees, or anyone else. He is president of the United States, and while he is the people will realize that they have a man of decision, firmness and brains. They may shoot their little arrows of envy and malice at him to their heart's content, but all will fall harmlessly on the impenetrable armor of his indifference. This is the way it should be. It shows that President Roosevelt is trying to satisfy his own judgment and conscience, and not any element, party, or section of the country. If he were a politician it might be different. But his every act since he went into office shows that he does not deem the exalted position of president of the United States a proper place for practicing politics, hence while president he will be no politician.

The people of the county who have not been vaccinated or had their children vaccinated, should do so at once. The recent discovery of several cases of smallpox that are alleged to have developed from one treated several weeks ago indicates that it would do no harm to follow on the law, no matter whether the law is unconstitutional and unenforceable or not. It makes no difference whether the reported efficiency of vaccination is fact or fancy, it is recognized by a vast majority of medical men of the world as a great preventive, and a veritable boon to humanity, and if all these are mistaken the few reluctant residents of McCracken county can well afford to be also. A great many stories are told of the occasional disastrous effect of vaccination, but there are very few of them that can be traced to any reliable source, or had any foundation in fact. Not a doctor in Paducah, out of the thousands of people vaccinated know of a single fatal instance. In McCracken county the people cannot be forced to comply with the compulsory vaccination law until the board of health takes an appeal and has County Judge Lightfoot reversed on his ruling that the laws of the state cannot be enforced. The health of more than the few who refuse to be vaccinated is at stake, for they are liable, if not restrained, to spread the pestilence everywhere.

The editor of the Vorwaerts, Berlin, is up against it. He has been arrested for libel, and the emperor has virtually pronounced him guilty, although the courts have not yet passed on the case. If the judges declare him not guilty, they will be accused of contradicting the emperor by the latter's friends, and if they declare him guilty, they will be charged with having been influenced by the emperor, by friends of the editor, who has a strong following. The judges probably wish the editor would take a change of venue.

In the olden time, if a canal were deemed essential to the best commercial interests of the country, a canal would have been built if a nation as powerful and invincible as the United States desired it. Owing to our higher civilization nowadays, however, we must negotiate, arbitrate and bear with an insignificant and stubborn nation that would never be missed if wiped out of existence at one swipe.

The decision of the Louisville judge probably means that sparring exhibitions can be held in Kentucky. The learned Louisville jurist holds that you cannot prevent crime by injunction. That officers have no right to presume that something advertised as a legitimate exhibition is going to be something else, and an infraction of the law. If it proves to be unlawful, they may stop it after it begins.

Henry Yontsey denies that he has ever made a confession, either written or verbal, which indicates that the Goebel Democrats haven't gone out of the lying business yet. They and their papers a short time ago came out in flaming headlines with a story that he had made a confession that would implicate most of the prominent Republicans of the state.

When folks go to drink their older fresh from the faucet these days, they are reminded of the excellent chance they had to vote themselves a filtration plant a few weeks ago—a chance they rejected.

The United States ought to build the Panama canal and if Colombia doesn't like it, that can be settled later.

POLICE REPORT

Over 200 Arrests Made During November.

Many Drunks and Breaches of the Peace on the List.

The report of the police department has been finished and is as follows: For the past month there have been 204 arrests made counting in the bawdy houses; the patrol wagon has made 107 runs and has traversed 188 miles. The arrests are as follows: Drunk 84, drunk and disorderly 12, disorderly conduct 26, breach of the peace 59, breach of ordinance 18, petty larceny 4, grand larceny 2, suspects 1, robbery 3, housebreaking 1, money by false pretenses 1, false swearing 2, maliciously enticing 4, malicious shooting 2, malicious assault 3, concealed weapons 2, immorality 6, fugitive from justice 1, gaming 7, insulting language 4, bench warrant 2, selling whiskey without a license 1, beating board bills 2, violating the Sabbath 1, disorderly houses 11. This summed up will make a total of 99 white males with 9 white females and 73 colored males with 13 colored females.

Work of "Christian Gentleman." The recent disturbance of a funeral procession on the east side by young rowdies suggests a story told by Miss Lillian Wald, head worker and founder of the Nurses' Settlement, says the New York Times.

While calling daily on a sick family in one of the tenements Miss Wald made the acquaintance of two Chinese laundymen who worked in the basement of the tenement house. Passing the laundry one day, Miss Wald noticed that only one Chinaman was at work, and entering, she asked: "Where's Charlie?"

The ingenious reply was: "Oh, Charlie, he not here. Him in hospital. Christian gentleman hit him on head with stick."

"In the Garbage at a Monk." They were conversing together on a West Madison street car, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. One was young and pretty; the other short, plump, and clearly past 40. Between the steps of the cable train snatches of what they said could be heard.

"—Just know I never will fall in love," was the last part of a sentence uttered by the pretty girl as the clattering of the car ceased at one of the crossings.

"—Absolutely no doubt, but that you will, my dear," was next heard from the short and plump. The car was delayed by a broken wagon at this juncture, so that the rest of what the plump one said has been preserved for posterity. Here it is:

"Now I used to think the same way until one evening at a masquerade ball I met my future husband. I just loved him right on sight. Why, I couldn't help it, he looked so handsome. He was clothed in the garb of a monk, and I rushed up to him and said, 'Exit homo.'"

Edge of Pelee's Shower.

While the fiery tornado, passing toward the south and west, widened the sweep of its destructive power in order to extend its devastations further another remarkable phenomenon came to stop it in its course. Two strong atmospheric currents, laden with rain, moving, one from the southeast, the other from the north, fell of a sudden upon the sides of the fiery spout, and, encircling it along a distinctly marked line, cooled it to such a point that I have seen persons who, finding themselves precisely upon the line of demarcation, were struck on one side by fiery missiles, while on the other, and only a few feet away, nothing was falling but the rain of mud, clinders and stones which descended on the countryside every where.—From Century for August.

Restorations at Athens. Greek architects have decided that the Erechtheum at Athens must be restored if it is to be preserved. The restorations will be limited to strengthening and to putting in place the fragments about it.

Birds' Eggs and Science.

It is not often that science acknowledges herself at fault in an apparently simple matter, but she frankly does so in regard to the color and marking of a large proportion of birds' eggs. A reason there must be for their infinite diversity—it cannot be an esthetic one; and all we can say with any confidence is that the ever-permeating instinct of distrust is probably exhibited in egg shells as in more important things, and the main idea in their scheme of coloration has been the securing of safety from many enemies by harmonizing them with their surroundings. But it is a scheme full of perplexing exceptions, which any one can study for himself at this charming season.

THE ANTARCTIC NIGHT.

It Is Far More Trying Than the Arctic Darkness.

From this day (May 17) we were not to see the sun again for two months. At the beginning we did not dread the prospect of this long polar night before us, but before the sun had been gone many days one of us became very ill. Danco lacked the constitution to hold out, and on June 5 he died. It is useless to dwell on sad recollections. He was loved on board the Belgica, and this loss, following on the death of the sailor Wiencke, who was washed overboard by a wave in Bransfield strait, made a deep impression on us. In the obscurity of the midday twilight we carried Danco's body to a hole which had been cut in the ice and committed it to the deep. A bitter wind was blowing as with bared heads, each of us silent and sad, we left him there—and the ice drifted on.

In the antarctic regions, thanks doubtless to the detestable climate, the disastrous effects of the polar night are far more marked than in the north. There is a general lowering of the system, and the heart acts feebly. Several of us developed serious symptoms, and without daily care on the part of the doctor others would not have survived the period of darkness, though it was relatively short. One part of Cook's treatment was very effective and ingenious. Those who were most affected by deficient circulation were made to stand in a half naked condition close to the red-hot stove for several hours daily. In this way the action of the solar radiation was in part replaced by rays of artificial heat in a manner admittedly primitive, but none the less beneficial.

Life on board during the polar night was of great interest from a psychological point of view. One finds oneself in conditions of existence altogether abnormal and crowded against one's fellows in an uncomfortably narrow space. Some became nervous, excitable and sleepless, with the imagination continually wandering and dreaming. I was one of these. Others, more happily constituted, became chronically tired and indifferent. These slept much. But everybody was content to spend twelve hours a day or more in bed. One of the crew developed maniacal tendencies; another, in more evil case, was brought home insane.—Henryk Arctowski in Geographical Journal.

Death Superstitions.

According to one superstition a favorite method death has of announcing that a person is to become his victim is to cause the doomed one to sneeze while viewing a corpse, or to have the subject see his face reflected in a mirror while standing near the body of one in whom life is extinct. A sparrow flew into an open window of the consumptive ward at the hospital one day while I was attending a patient and without alighting flew out of another. I was immediately besieged upon all sides by tearful requests to redouble my efforts to effect a cure, as the action of the bird was a certain omen that death would claim some one present within a week.

One of the patients died the next day, and the other poor fellow once resuscitated the little spark of hope which feebly flickered previous to the advent of the little bird, thinking, probably, that as one had succumbed they had some chance of regaining their health.—Exchange.

New Year's in China.

In China it is considered obligatory on all persons to settle every pecuniary obligation before the first day of the new year, a custom that might with profit be imitated elsewhere. The Chinese have also the singular practice of dating all births on the first day of the year on which they occur, so that as far as the record shows every Chinaman has but one birthday, the first day of January. The widest variance is observable in the selection of the day which should be considered the first of the year. Some nations have begun it in the spring, others in the autumn, some in midsummer, most in midwinter; but, whatever the day, the usages and rejoicings which characterized it have not varied so greatly as might be supposed, but have remained for ages almost unchanged.

Why Not "Go Tourist?"

It is the sensible way to go to California—much less expensive than traveling in a standard sleeper, and almost as comfortable.

But be sure you go the right way—via the El Paso-Rock Island route. It is the quickest tourist car line to Southern California. Only three days Chicago to Los Angeles.

Cars leave Chicago daily. The Wednesday and Friday cars are "personally conducted"—that is, they are in charge of experienced excursion conductors, who relieve you of all bother about tickets and baggage.

Another good route to California is via Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City. Tuesday and Thursday are the days cars leave Chicago for San Francisco and Los Angeles. Folder giving full information furnished on request.

SEE THE WEST

In Its 1902 Prosperity.

There is no better or more economical way to make the journey to California than to join the Burlington's personally conducted excursions in through tourist sleepers which leave St. Louis every Wednesday night at 9:00 o'clock.

All classes of tickets are honored, and a through double berth to Los Angeles or Frisco from St. Louis costs but $6.00. The conductor who is in charge for the entire journey, is a Burlington employee selected for this special duty. He meets you at the depot, cares for the baggage, handles the transportation en route, in fact, it must be apparent how desirable such a conductor would be.

The route of these excursions is the "all-year route" across the continent—via Denver, Colorado Springs, through scenic Colorado and Utah by day light, including Pike's Peak, Royal Gorge, Leadville, Glenwood, Salt Lake and the new Southern Pacific scenic coast line from Frisco to Santa Barbara and Los Angeles. We publish handsomely illustrated folders descriptive of these excursions, also a new list of California resorts, hotels and stopping places.

Any or all of these will be mailed free on request, and we invite you to describe to us your proposed trip and let us advise you the least cost and the best of all that goes to make up the most interesting route over the western half of the continent.

POLICE COURT

Negro Youth Held on Two Felony Charges.

Attorney Dave Cross is Acting Police Judge—Several Misdemeanors.

Police court was soon over today. Attorney Dave Cross is acting police judge during Judge Sanders' absence. Sardus Hart, colored, will probably get quick action in his search for trouble. He is alleged to have gone into the stable of Mr. W. T. McCutchen on the Cairo road, and stolen a set of harness, which he sold to O. J. Coleman, claiming it was his own, for $4. He was arrested on two charges, one for housebreaking and one for obtaining money by false pretenses. Both cases were turned over to the grand jury this morning by Acting Police Judge Dave Cross.

Charles Sullivan, colored, was remanded to jail to await the action of the grand jury in a case against him for maliciously assaulting Lawrence Armstrong. The latter is the negro who was arrested not long ago, supposed to be Andrew O'Farren, wanted for murder in Boone Terre, Mo. He proved to be the wrong man, came back and after being robbed of his clothes several days ago at the railroad camp, was Saturday assaulted. Sullivan's case was also turned over to the grand jury, which met today.

Will Baker, a stone cutter, was fined $10 and costs for using profane language.

Ed Oleichman was fined $10 and costs for a breach of the peace.

D. Mains, for a breach of the peace, was fined $3 and costs and recognized in the sum of $100 for his good behavior towards his wife.

Mary Hammond, who keeps the "Round Top," was fined $10 and costs for running a disorderly house.

Engene Rice was fined $1 and costs for a plain drink.

CASE OPENS

Palmer House Undertakes an Innovation in That Line.

Will Have One of the Swellest Places in the State—Its Purpose.

Manager Charles Reed, of the Palmer house, will tomorrow night open his cafe, which is to be known as the "Palmer House Grill Room." It is located on the second floor of the hotel, and is one of the handsomest things in the state. He has not secured quite all of the furniture, but will open tomorrow night as he originally intended to do.

The cafe will not give the hotel the European service, but is designed principally for the guests, although it will be open to the general public. It will be closed every day until 8 p. m. and then remain open all night. It is for the benefit of late guests, theater parties, social luncheons and such things, and will be found very convenient, the service to be first class in every respect.

Mr. Reed expects to secure a good patronage, especially as the Kentucky club closes its cafe service this week. The first luncheon will be served tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Jake Wallenstein, who entertains some lady friends.

BACK TO KENTUCKY

Penrod, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church here, but now of Ennis, Texas, to that church. It is not known whether Rev. Penrod will accept or not, but is believed that he will consider favorably a call back to Kentucky.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH.

CURE CATARRH BY NATURE'S OWN METHOD—EVERY BREATH OF HYOMEL BRINGS RELIEF.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by drugging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes.

Until recently your physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate, but now with Hyomel you can carry a health giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete outfit of Hyomel costs but $1 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomel. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and there is enough Hyomel for more than a month's treatment of catarrh. If one bottle does not cure an extra bottle of Hyomel can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

The leading druggists of this city have sold hundreds of Hyomel outfits and the more they sell, the more convinced they are that they are perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomel does not cure.

Those who are subject to catarrh or catarrhal colds will do themselves an injustice if they do not purchase a Hyomel outfit at once, so as to be prepared for the sudden changes of the season.

GOOD FOR STURGIS.

BIG VEIN OF COAL STRUCK AND CENSUS TO BE BUILT.

Sturgis, Ky., Dec. 1.—The Hillman Iron Co. of St. Louis and Grand Rivers has struck the four foot vein of Bell coal here at a depth of 250 feet. There is great rejoicing over the event, for it means the building of some 200 ovens and the employment of 800 to 1,000 men. The company will at once begin to sink the main shaft, and will operate in the meantime the six shaft sunk, in order to supply the Grand Rivers iron furnaces with the superior coke which the Bell coal makes.

Meers, Davis and Finley of New York, representatives of the big coal combination, arrived Monday to confer with President J. L. Frankel of the Tradewater Coal Co. regarding a deal for this company's property.

TEACHERS' MEETING HERE WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

The teachers of Paducah consider the meeting of the First District Educational association here Friday and Saturday a great success. Secretary—Miss Mattie Dalton, Princeton. The place for holding the next meeting has not been chosen.

Cigars for Crowned Heads. Making cigars for princes and potentates and crowned heads is a great business in Havana. It is a good advertising feature. It gives the cigar-makers a prestige which they cannot get in any other way. King Edward has his cigars specially made. All the cigars that are made for crowned heads by Cuban manufacturers are bought by the men they are made for, and scrupulous care is exercised in the matter. The only men who ever get any of these cigars either get them on orders from royal personages or they get them as guests of the royalty. A particular kind of tobacco is used in the manufacture of these cigars. Take the case, for instance, of the czar of Russia. Cigars that are made for him are braided with the Russian coat of arms, and he buys all the cigars the factory can make out of the material and in the

WHERE HE WAS LACKING.

Railroad Man Makes Professional Criticism of Minister.

Ministers, as a rule, are not at all averse to telling a good story, even at their own expense. A Baptist minister was so much amused at a witty criticism of his own preaching as he would have been at a similar comment on another man's sermon.

One Sunday morning a well known railway magnate came in and took a seat in a pew. It was the first time that he had been seen at the chapel, and his presence created some little stir. The minister preached his sermon, and then, perhaps to make the most of his opportunity, he traveled over the same ground again in language calculated to be more impressive. Thus the discourse was spun out to unusual length.

When the service ended, one of the deacons waited for the great man and expressed the hope that he had enjoyed the sermon.

"Yes, it was all right," said the visitor. "There's only one drawback with your minister's preaching."

"What is that?"

"He doesn't appear to have very good terminal facilities."

Not a Chinese Word.

"It's a mistake to suppose that 'joss' is a Chinese word," says a retired ship's carpenter. "I've traveled a good bit in the Orient in my time, and among the odds and ends of interesting information I picked up was a knock-out of the genuineness of 'joss' as a Chinese word. Chloamen only know 'joss' when they come in contact with Europeans. A Chinese priest that I became chummy with in Hankow told me that there was no such word in Chinese. He explained that the word was a corruption of the Spanish word 'Dios' and had come into use through the missionaries. Maoy early missionaries, he said, were Spanish priests, and their pronunciation of 'Dios' was speedily corrupted into 'joss' by native tongues and applied to the Chinese deities. It's only on the Chinese seaboard that the word is understood by Chinamen. In the interior, the priest told me, the celestial had no knowledge of it."

"You don't say!"

"Yes, indeed! He's got to 'stayin' out late at night. Why, last Saturday night he went off down town and never came home until half after 9. I've got a mind to ask the preacher to talk to him on the error o' his way."

LOVE IN THE STUBBLE.

The girl's face was young, plump, shapely. Her hair—russet hair—had been drawn tightly away from the face with a damp brush. It culminated in a tight knob under the hat. There were freckles in groups on each side of her aquiline nose and in semicircles under her blue eyes—steady eyes. Her humorous mouth was slightly open, expectant. Her teeth dazzled. Her wrists above her white cotton gloves were brown, browner than her face.

The girl's eyes were fixed upon the stifle in the far corner. About her mouth there played impatience, anticipation, a little nervousness, lots of self-satisfaction. She had waited for him on this haystack every Sunday evening for two months. Every Sunday evening he had come, walked round the field without looking at her and followed her home without a word.

This evening silence must end. She had put her purse on the path by the stifle where he could not fail to see it. Her Sunday frock was new.

She ran the thumb and forefinger of her left hand down each consecutive finger of her right hand, pressing the tip of her first finger finally between each. Her eyes never left the stifle. Then, with more firmness, with some spite, she changed thumb and first finger and proceeded down each consecutive finger of her left hand.

The "It's very nice and cool in here oh what a dear old church I am!" he had cooed. But the world was full of flower whispers, the stirring of leaves, the chattering of birds and insects.

Then the girl's mouth closed and turned quickly up at each corner. A gleam of delight flew up to her eyes.

A head appeared on the other side of the stifle, a head with a cap on the back of it, a lathered lock shining in the distance, then brown, broad shoulders, which dipped slowly left-right.

A great leg was swung over the top bar, and a heavy boot, patterned with gleaming nails, made a scurrying on the step. Another followed it, these the multicolored wump on the dry field of both. The head bent slightly forward, the left-right of the dipping shoulders came slowly up the path.

The girl opened her first sunshade—white. Her breast swung without beating.

The men stopped, stooped eagerly, picked up the purse and glanced under his eyelashes toward the haystack. The girl's heart resumed beating like a stick duet, allegro, upon a carpet. She moved more to the end of the ledge of the haystack, crossing one legling white foot over the other. There would be ample room for two, uncomfortably.

A green insect dropped on her white knee. She slipped it carefully off.

The left-right crunch, crunch was on the stubble. She lowered her head and watched him under the big brim of her poppy crowned hat. He was coming slowly toward the haystack.

If he saw her watching, he would certainly stop. She lowered the white sunshade to cover her face. She would see him much closer soon. Besides, she could dash her face with her handkerchief.

Her smile faded. The steps were passing. Impudently, as the corners of her mouth drooped, she peeped out this side of the sunshade. He had come within ten yards of the stack and had then turned off to go round it.

Oh, if God had but made her a mee!

He trudged once round—and passed. He whistled the air of a hymn, a scattered whiff of which came to them at times—and passed. The third time he stopped.

She held her breath. All her senses were enmeshed into one—listening. The sunshade longed to rise. A chaf-such chirped in its sleep. The rich notes of the organ waivered by. Another green insect dropped on her knee. Neither moved.

"Hey!"

The sunshade fell.

"You've dropped your hat!"

Her purse fell into her lap.

She stammered something he could not hear. Their eyes met.

He opened his lips, shuffled, shut them, dropped his eyes and turned on his heel.

Oh, if God had but made her a man!

His broad, brown shoulders dipped left-right till they came to the faint track his heavy boots had made round the fringe of the field.

The awe sank, taking the tree's shadow away. The glow across the field turned to red, turned to gold and followed them. The shrill coo of the boys coming out of church, the faint hum of voices, the click of the cricket, the crunch of slow, steady, circular treads, were mixed with the murmur of the shakling grass.

Waiting till he was in front of the stack, she dropped her sunshade and slipped to the ground. She was stiff and angry. She was stiff and pleased. She had only thought before. Now she knew.

Without looking to right or left, with quick tread she crossed the field, mounted the stifle, turned sharp to the right, dawdled along the footpath till the slow scrunching came round the corner, left the five barred gate open for him and came to the road leading to the village—home.

She entered the gate, shut it and, putting her sunshade carefully against its clearest bar, leaned over it, listening. The scent of honeysuckle and sweetbrier hung upon the silent air.

As he came up he looked at her and smiled. She answered it with one that told him that she knew.

He passed.—Kling.

A MATTER OF DIPLOMACY

(Original.)

Just before the Spanish-American war a cablegram was received in Washington that France was about completing a treaty of alliance between certain powers possessing sufficient united navies to hold the United States fleets in check, giving Spain their influence and leaving her free access to Cuba. After consultation between the president and the cabinet a reply was sent, but what its nature was has never been forthcoming. What is known is that one of the ablest American diplomats then abroad was instructed to use every effort to defeat this treaty, offering England certain coveted support in case she should forbid the interference. The difficulty in his way was a want of time. The treaty was in Paris and had been signed by all the powers concerned except Germany.

One evening a talented and energetic young Spanish diplomat, whom we shall call Cavallos, took the evening train from Paris for Brussels. He had with him a leather suit case, which he kept between his heels and the bottom of his seat. Opposite him sat a lady, leaning her head back on the cushion languidly and wearing a thick veil. When the train reached Amiens, she uncovered her face, which proved to be young and attractive, though very pale, and, looking appealingly at Cavallos, she asked in French if he would have the kindness to go into the attelage and bring her a glass of water. Cavallos hesitated a moment. Then, taking up the suit case, he sprang from the coach and returned with the water, never loosening his grip on the case during the trip.

"Thank you ever so much, monsieur," said the lady. "I would have shown my appreciation of your kindness by at least taking change of your suit case had you permitted me."

"It is not heavy," replied Cavallos, "and there is nothing in it but a few toilet articles."

The lady leaned her head back un- easily on the cushion and covered her face with her handkerchief.

"Is madame suffering?" asked Cavallos.

"Dreadfully. I have neuralgia in the face."

"Too bad," replied the sympathetic Cavallos. "I wish I had something with me to alleviate it."

"There is only one thing that will relieve it, a preparation of chloroform and camphor, but I don't like to use it in a public coach. It has such an odor."

There were two ladies in the coach besides the speaker and Cavallos. All agreed that they would endure the odor of the drug if it would save suffering. The invalid demurred for a time, but the agony became so great that she was disturbing the other passengers as well as paining them at seeing her suffer, and she at last consented. The drug was certainly odoriferous, so much so that at the next station the two ladies got into another carriage.

"I beg of you," said the invalid to Cavallos, "don't stay here for fear of being considered unsympathetic. I shall not blame you if you leave."

Cavallos hesitated. He would have preferred to leave, but he was a gentle fellow and did not care to appear selfish.

"You would be alone, madame."

At that moment the lady became faint from pain, and before she could recover to make a reply the train had started.

It was some time before there was another stop. The lady took a vial from her pocket and applied it frequently to her nostrils. Cavallos began to feel drowsy.

"Would you mind having the window raised?" he asked.

"Oh, please don't!" pleaded the lady. "The cold air blowing on my face would kill me."

Cavallos' head began to swim. Then the lady looked to him for aid. Outside the scenery, instead of going backward, as it seems to one moving rapidly forward, revolved. The diplomat's chin sank on his breast. He was unconscious.

"Come," said the guard an hour later, poking his head into the door. "Wake up. We are at Brussels."

Cavallos slowly came to himself. He did not feel his suit case at his heels. He looked down. It was gone. So was the invalid.

That same night an American gentleman of distinguished bearing crossed the English channel from Boulogne to Folkestone, arriving at London in the morning. Without breakfast he hurried to the home of the foreign minister, called him from his breakfast and was closeted with him for half an hour. The two then departed for the foreign office. In the afternoon cablegrams were sent to the British ambassadors on the continent that England would resent any interference in the Spanish-American imbroglio.

At the defense of Santiago a Spanish soldier distinguished himself in every action. Indeed he so constantly and so recklessly exposed himself that his comrades at last suspected that he was trying to get himself killed. A few days before the surrender a sharpshooter in blue, who had been watching him for some time, but who had not been in a position to reach him, suddenly found him within range. There was a crack of a rifle, and the Spaniard fell. When, some days later, his effects were gone over preparatory to sending them to Spain, the name on certain articles of linen, instead of that under which he had enlisted, was found

"Stoney" echoed Blair. "For the first time in my life I forgot that there was such a thing. I read that letter, as you guessed, and I was crazed. I knew she was holding her secret, and would put him off for shame, and because she treasured up something he had said that frightened her—about some woman who ran away to be married. Well, I went there that afternoon; I talked with her, raved at her and then—well, you know what happened. I thought every one would know I did it. We had had more meetings in the last few weeks than you'd believe possible," he remonstrated, "but then nobody cares what his neighbor does here in New York. Our whole romance passed without notice. I was on the balcony when Robinson came."

"Did you know that he returned?" asked Elmendorf.
"I returned!"
"He left his cane in the room, got outside the house, got in again because the lock hadn't caught and entered the room, thinking that he had heard an answer to his knock. There was the money right on the table, and nobody in sight, you and Miss Miller being on the balcony between the windows. He needed money, and he took it, and I traced it. The man at headquarters now. He tried to skip, but he was shadowed at the time, as I knew and he didn't."

"I thought Neale got the money," said Blair, starting as if from a dose.
"Robinson will be released," said Elmendorf. "There'll be no complaint. This whole case will be covered up."

"Covered up?" echoed Blair, and he laughed. "I'll be covered up—in my grave, and by —, Elmendorf, I don't want to die! I don't want to die! Can you understand that?"
"Don't die, then," said Elmendorf. "There's no need of it. I shan't trouble you. I could make a lot of money by letting you alone, and I'm going to do it for nothing, or, to be exact, I'm going to do it for Miss Miller. You'll go scot free, Blair, you black hearted, lying brute!"

Blair suddenly rose to his feet. He seemed to be impossibly tall as he stood there with raised shoulders and clenched hands, staring down at Elmendorf.
"Do you mean to say that you have not come here to take me?" he demanded.

"That's what I mean," said Elmendorf. "You can go where you please, and you'd better go as fast as you can, for Alden may be here at any moment. Perhaps you have observed certain physical peculiarities of Mr. Alden? I seem to hear your bones crack, Blair, in his hands."

Blair gave utterance to a terrible oath.

"Do you know what I have done?" he cried in a voice that sent a chill to Elmendorf's heart. "Look here!"

He lifted the small bottle and then dashed it down to shivers.

"I'm done for! I've taken enough of that to kill three men. No electric chairs for me. And now—I might have lived! I might have gone abroad. I could have had money—found a new life; but I'm a dead man."

He had writhed open the door of a locker upon the wall, but at the last words he turned to launch a frightful curse at Elmendorf.

"I may still save myself," he babbled, and there was a rattling of bottles in the cupboard. "This is it. Great heavens! There is hardly enough. Bring me that water."

Elmendorf started to comply, but his speed did not equal Blair's impatience, and the latter sprang forward so that they came together. There was a tinkling of glass upon the floor.

Blair sprang back, his face dripping and ghastly red with the poison.

"It's all I have!" he cried. "It's my last chance! And you—you did it!"

With incredible strength and suddenness he seized a heavy paperweight from the table and aimed a fearful blow at Elmendorf. The detective recoiled for an instant and then fell face downward upon the floor, where he lay perfectly still.

Blair glanced at him once, then rushed to a mirror near the window and stared at his own livid face.

"There may be time!" he gasped, one hand clutching his breast. "If I can get to a drug store!"

He seized his hat instinctively and rushed to the door, through which he passed into the hall.

"Dr. Blair," said a remembered voice, "I must speak with you. Come back with me. Where is Elmendorf? Have you seen him?"

Frantic, he tried to shake off the hand that was on his arm, but the hand was of iron. He babbled unintelligible words.

"Poison!" cried Alden. "Who is poisoned? Come back here to the light!"

And he thrust Blair into the office, practically carrying the man at arm's length. Utterly insane with the fear of death, Blair struck at his captor vainly and screamed like a child.

Elmendorf was struggling to his feet as they entered, and Alden uttered a cry at the sight of him.

"Did he do this?" he exclaimed, pointing at Blair, whom he had released.

Elmendorf pressed his hand upon his hair, which was wet with blood.

"Yes," he said hoarsely; "this—and this—other!"
Alden paused an instant, the strength of his body gathering for effort. Then he leaped forward and seemed to pass half through, half over, the body of Blair, as if it had been a ghost in garments. Turning, he saw Blair lying upon the floor, his limbs contorted, his face bearing the unmistakable stamp of death.

Elmendorf staggered forward and knelt beside the body.

"We're going to keep her secret," he said. "Her name must not appear in this. We must see what the man has in his pockets and in the room. Some of these fellows make strange memoranda."

"Brenda has told me the story," said Alden. "It could not be concealed. In fact, I had got so much from the nurse who bribed that the remainder mattered little. And this man was her husband, this cowardly wretch, this assassin of women!"

"He was also an inventor of women," said Elmendorf. "And I never knew a shrewd trick."

"Do you mean that he lied about seeing one?"

"There was no mysterious woman in the case," replied Elmendorf. "It was a pure fiction and worthy of its author. He was clever, and for a thoroughgoing scoundrel—Hello! What's this?"

He had drawn a sheet of paper from Blair's pocket, and after a glance at it he handed it to Alden, who read that Arthur Gordon Blair and Joseph Neale, captain of police, were equal partners.

CHAPTER XX.

THE ONLY THING THAT MATTERS.

THE document appeared to possess the power of a spell, for while Alden held it in his hands he heard on heavy blow upon the door, and then Neale strode into the room.

"What's this?" he demanded. "Elmendorf, didn't I tell you to let this man alone?"

"I'll let him alone now, captain," said Elmendorf. "You can bury him. And see that you bury everything else too. This whole case is on the quiet. I can steer things at headquarters with a little money, Mr. Alden, and Joe Neale must take care of the precinct. This is a mysterious suicide, Neale; due probably to financial trouble or ill health. It has no relation to the case of Miss Miller."

"Since when did I take orders from you?" cried Neale.

"Since I got hold of this," replied Elmendorf, showing the partnership agreement. "I know the whole game, Neale, and you can't stand it just now."

"That's off anyhow," said Neale, with deep bitterness. "Duncan MacLane was too smart. He has got the Holbein company's option himself, for the gent who was to have been his son-in-law, of course."

And he bowed grotesquely to Alden.

"MacLane smelled a rat after he had given up to Blair," he continued, "and so he stepped in ahead of us. And now, Elmendorf, I'm willing to call this thing a draw on your terms. I'll attend to matters here strictly on the quiet, and you take care of your own and of it as well as you can. Is it a go?"

"It is," replied the detective. "As soon as I get my head patched up I'll go down to headquarters and get Robinson out or start things moving that way. And you, Mr. Alden?"

"I am going back to St. Winifred's," was the reply.

When Alden reached the hospital, he went at once to Kendall's room, from which place he sent word of his arrival. Both the doctor and Brenda presently joined him.

"I think the danger is all over," said Kendall, taking Alden's hand. "This last attack of faintness was to be expected; but I do not look for any recurrence. But how is it with you? Something serious has happened?"

Alden told them simply and directly just what had occurred.

"She is free, then?" exclaimed Brenda.

"Yes, and partly by my hand," he replied. "Brenda, I am glad of it. I am glad to have been concerned in that man's death. I am more than half a savage. From the first instant, when I learned that Elsie had been struck down, I had scarcely more than an idea, own passion—the desire for vengeance. I wanted to kill with my own hands the man who had done this thing. All softer feelings were swallowed up in that one desire."

"It produced a singular effect," said Kendall, with a shudder.

"You mean that I seemed to be guilty of this crime?" said Alden calmly.

"Well, there was murder in my heart at the time, you see, and I cannot blame any who misjudged me. And now, Brenda," he said, drawing himself up and clenching his white and delicate hands that gave so little hint of their enormous strength, "I am glad that I can go to her and tell her that he is dead; that that dreadful nightmare of the past need not hang over her; that all those horrors—"

"My friend," said Brenda, checking him, "you will do nothing of the kind. He asked her in surprise what she might mean."

"You will utter no such violent sentiments," she said. "Elsie believes herself a sinner. She looks upon that folly as if it were a terrible offense, and, what is much more important, she believes that you will so regard it. She thinks that you will look upon her as a girl disgraced by her own act and saved by chance. The whole matter has assumed a shape utterly monstrous in her eyes. Now, what will you do—thank God in her presence that the dreadful drama closed with your hands upon Blair's throat? Never, never! You will be very gentle always. You will say to her in the beginning that you love her dearly and that nothing else matters in the least. You will speak as little as possible of this tangle of crime. It is not important. Do you comprehend? Love is what matters. Throughout these first difficult days and for all your life you will do the same thing. You will help her to forget that such men as Blair are in the world; that she ever met one of them. It won't be a forbidden topic. Oh, far from that; merely a matter not worth brooding over in a world full of sunshine and love."

"Brenda," said he, "this is the flower of wisdom. I think I might have erred in a way that would have taken a long time to set right. Can I see her now?"

"I think you can," said Kendall—"now."

And with the last word he looked at Brenda. Alden understood.

"I shall be all you wish me to be," he said.

So they went to Elsie's room. Alden lingering until the way was prepared for him. He entered smiling and handsome in the way of the days before. He knelt down beside Elsie's bed and fastened a grip on Elmendorf's arm that couldn't have been loosened without a major surgical operation and led him out of the train despite his protests on the ground of duty. They went to Alden's office, and when they left it "the force" had lost an excellent officer and really able detective.

WON FAVOR BY HIS GRIT.

Good Story Told of United States Naval Officer.

A tribute was paid recently to the late Capt. W. W. Reisinger, U. S. N., at the Grand hotel. "Capt. Reisinger was the kind of man you can obey as an officer, respect as a man and cherish as a friend," said F. C. Cheswick of Washington. "The delayed news of his death at Panama, which came to us a week or so ago, was a great shock to his many friends in Washington, Annapolis, Pensacola and elsewhere. I remember an anecdote of the man which brings out the stuff there was in him. He was a little man—hardly over the limit to get into Annapolis, I should say—but he always insisted on being obeyed to the dot, and he always ordered everything to be kept right up to the mark. About ten years ago, more or less, he was executive officer of the receiving ship Dale, at the Washington Navy Yard, and used to keep the new men pretty hard at work shining up brass and the like. Some of them, especially the big fellows, didn't overmuch relish the novel sensation of being bossed around by such a 'little chap,' as they put it, and used to pass around remarks about how easy they could do him up some time off duty. He overheard some of those remarks and one day when he was off duty he appeared among the men, took off his coat and asked for volunteers in the task of doing him up. He was a foot-ball man at Annapolis, and fully able to take care of himself anyway. But the men respected his grit without trial, and obeyed him gladly after that."—New York Tribune.

DRINK CAUSED HIS DEATH.

Too Much Water Blamed For Death of Eben Waters.

A dispatch from Salem, Mass., conveys the information that Eben Waters (prophetic name), 99 years old, died last week from excessive water drinking. He did not indulge in alcoholic drinks of any kind, and he is said to have been temperate in all things except his appetite for water. It was his habit to drink three quarts of water every day, and this, his doctors say, resulted in "complications that proved fatal." At any rate, he died. It is a sad case to contemplate. Here was a man cut off in the prime of life, at the perihelion of his usefulness, so to speak, and all because of the lack of a little wholesome restraint. It is charitable to believe that he was not wholly responsible. It may have been that he was an only son, and that his dotting parents spoiled him, allowed him to have his own way too often, and did not point out strongly enough that self-indulgence is the shortest path to the grave. Of course, they see their error now that it is too late, which is the cause of fully one-third of the tragedies of life. Scientists aver that the average of life is greater now than at any other period in the history of man, and that more interest is taken in the subject of longevity. If this be so, there is a moral in the untimely demise of Mr. Waters. It is, "Don't go to the pump too often."—Rochester Post-Express.

A BIG SUCCESS

The closing out sale which began last week is successful beyond our highest expectations. From the start our store has been crowded with purchasers and we regret that we did not have enough salesladies to wait upon the trade at first. We have extra salesladies now and can wait upon our customers in a more satisfactory way. This is the most important sale of ever conducted in Paducah. Important because the sale is a genuine closing out sale and will continue until stock is sold.

OTHER NOTES OF CHURCHES

Broadway Methodist pulpit was filled yesterday morning and night by Rev. H. B. Johnston, presiding elder of the Paducah district, who is returned for his fourth year. Rev. Mr. Johnston has done an admirable work in this district, having given it a prominence not heretofore enjoyed by it, and his work is greatly appreciated. He is one of the most capable men in the Memphis conference and his wisdom and conservatism are recognized forces in the councils of the church. He is an optimist but not a visionary one, being accustomed to achieve success by his own efforts. As a leader of forces he has been compared to Kitchener, and his executive power makes him especially adapted to the district work. He preached two strong sermons yesterday. In the morning on "The Church" giving some wise and excellent thoughts. His evening theme was "Faith."

Rev. T. J. Newell, the new pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, is expected to arrive at noon today with his family from Dyersburg, Tenn., his former charge. Mr. Newell comes with the highest recommendations from all the churches he has served, and will receive a warm welcome from his church here. He has been in this conference only nine years by a transfer from the Mississippi conference, and has been stationed at Paris, Tenn., Brownsville and Dyersburg in that time, serving Paris and Brownsville four years each. He was taken from Dyersburg against their protest to meet the special need of Broadway, the Bishop and cabinet deeming him the right man for this place. In his previous charges he has done a notable work, and might be happily characterized as the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain by the Khama chiefdom, as "The Man who gets Things Done."

Large congregations were at the Cumberland Presbyterian church yesterday both morning and evening, the night one being especially large. A noticeable thing about this church is the largely increased attendance at all the services, especially the number of young men present at the evening service, there being fully as many men as women in the audience. There were five additions to this church yesterday, making a total of 23 in the last five weeks. Rev. J. O. Reid preached strong sermons both morning and night. His evening theme was "Seeking the Kingdom, or the First Thing First," and was especially forceful and thoughtful. The congregational singing at this church is excellent.

Rev. W. O. Sellers, the new pastor of the Third street Methodist church was in his pulpit yesterday and delighted his people greatly. Mr. Sellers is an easy, fluent speaker, and quite captured his congregation yesterday. He was formerly presiding elder of this district and has many friends here, where he has always been very popular.

Rev. J. W. Irion who was returned to the Trimble street Methodist church this year, filled his pulpit yesterday at both services and preached two able sermons. Mr. Irion is very popular with his people and has done a fine work in his two years as pastor of this church.

Rev. Olough A. Waterfield, who is in charge of the First Methodist church at Hickman, Ky., and who is well and pleasantly known here, was elected by the board of missions, at the recent session of the Memphis conference at Paris, Tenn., president of the board. This is quite an honor for so young a man, but Mr. Waterfield is one of the foremost young men of the conference, and his recognized talent and ability have called him to this position, which his friends prophesy he will fill with especial honor to himself and usefulness to the mission cause. Mr. Waterfield is a member of the Mission Quartet that did such notable service in the ten days' campaign in this district for the past two summers. His enthusiasm is backed by brilliancy, depth, originality and power and carries conviction everywhere.

WALLERSTEIN'S
THIRD AND BROADWAY

Mr. J. D. Smith, Jr., the newly elected superintendent of Broadway Methodist Sunday school, took charge yesterday morning, and will soon have his forces in working order. He has a fine reputation as a Sunday school worker and builder-up.

The Rev. Mr. Sykes of Pittsburg has been called to Grace Episcopal church here and will be here next Sunday to conduct services and view the field.

The Rev. Dr. Cava, of the First Presbyterian church, preached yesterday to large congregations and his sermons were forcible and marked by that depth of earnestness and breadth of thought that especially characterizes them. Dr. Cava made no reference in any way to the recent call received by him from Raleigh, N.C., and his people are anxiously awaiting his decision. It is the general hope of Paducah that he will remain here as he is popular with all people and classes and has a host of friends here.

The Ministerial Association held its regular meeting this morning and Rev. G. W. Banks, the president, by reason of his being transferred to the Hernando church, at Memphis, resigned, and his resignation was accepted. A committee composed of Revs. J. O. Reid, J. W. Irion and W. H. Robinson was appointed to draft suitable resolution. The election of a president was deferred until the next meeting owing to the new ministers not having arrived. There was nothing else done today outside of the regular routine reports.

Rev. W. H. Pinkerton spoke to the men on "What Is Success" at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, and the address was one of the best ever delivered at the association. This was the first of a series of four addresses to be delivered by that minister on the following Sundays. He is an excellent speaker and his addresses always go a long ways with the boys.

Menelik, emperor of Abyssinia, has ordered some German missionaries to immediately leave that country, as he will not have the faith of his people assailed. On the missionaries protesting against this order, Menelik asked them if they had no sinners in Germany. On receiving a reply in the affirmative, the Negus told them to return to Germany and give their countrymen the benefit of their advice, which was not wanted in his country.

Druggists' Signs.

The familiar blue colored glass bulbs are gradually ceasing to be a feature of the decoration of druggists' windows. In the past they were as necessary to every drug store as a red and white pole is to a harbor's shop, but they have not, as the pole has, a well-defined history. All that druggists know of them is that they have been always used as window ornaments. The brilliant liquids that they contain are made cheaply and plainly of chemicals and water. Thus, a solution of copper and ammonia makes blue; dichromate of potash makes orange; aniline dyes have of late been used in the chemical's place, but the liquids fade in a strong sunlight, and have frequently to be renewed. The liquids colored chemically, on the other hand, last well-nigh for ever.

Ordinary lima beans, some one has said, are good to allay thirst.
